TRAVOIS

Travois were used by tribes living on the plains
To carry their belongings with a minimum of strain.
A travois consisted of a wooden frame in the shape of a "V".
Placed over the shoulders of the animal carrying it for all to see.
The open end of the travois was dragged along the ground
While webbing in the middle served as the best seat around.
Dogs were the first animals used to carry a travois
Later on horses, because of their strength, were put into employ.
